2. In the rush of mid-day, when things are moving fast, I stop just long enough to seek the strength to help me last throughout the busy round of things that He will bring my way. When the sun is high above, I look to God and pray.

3. In the evening shadows, when things are slowing down, I thank the Lord for showing me the glory of His crown; reminding me that crisis brings new challenge for each day. When the sun is setting, I look to God and pray.
